Possessive Nouns

In this lesson, you will learn about the possessive noun which expresses ownership or possession. The given exercises and activities are carefully chosen to motivate your interest in learning about possessive nouns.

Lesson

What's In

Read the poem and answer the following questions.

- 1. What does the person in the poem feel?
- 2. Why does he need help?
- 3. What words in the poem cause the person to be confused?
- 4. Why do these words confuse him?
- 5. Which words in the poem are plural and singular nouns?

Encircle the correct form of possessive noun in the parentheses that will complete each sentences.

Read the paragraph and answer the following questions.

A man wanted to sell his son's donkey. He needed money for his wife's medicine who had been sick for a week. He brought the donkey to the market. First, he went to a friend's store. "Could you buy my donkey?" he asked. "I'm sorry I have no use for a donkey," the friend replied. So, the man went to Francis' bookshop. "Could you buy my donkey?" he asked. "No, I have a truck that carries my goods," Francis said. Then, he went to an old lady's pet shop. "Your donkey is too old for a pet," complained the old lady. As the man was looking for somebody to buy his donkey, he met the baker's wife. "My husband is looking for a donkey to carry the sacks of flour from the port," she said. The man went to the baker and sold his son's donkey. He said, "Now I have money for my wife's medicine." Source: English 4, LM page 56-57
